At the annual general meeting of the members of the Victoria Agricultural Society, held at Heidelberg on the 8rd instant, Mr. Henry Stokes, in the chair, the annual report, financial statement and balance sheet were unanimously adopted. From these documents it appears that the position and prospects of the society are decidedly improved and progressing favourably, notwithstanding the consequence of the depressing influence of deficient crops and remunerative prices, being deprived of the contributions of some of the former donors. The society has gained a considerable accession of new and influential members.

NEWCASTLE. [BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.]
 AUGUST 8.—The Newcastle Amateur Musical Association gave a concert at the Court House, in aid of the Volunteer Band Fund. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the room was well filled, and the programme of the evening comprising overtures, songs, glee, and Ethiopian melodies. Considering this was the first appearance of the Association before the public, they certainly acquitted themselves well, and gave a most creditable performance. No doubt many of them owe their present efficiency to their accomplished musical conductor, Mr Fanning, who has devoted his spare time to the cause, and by his example and by their appearance last night, they did him infinite credit. The performance, upon the whole, was a most decided success, and was highly appreciated by the public. About 600 were present.

ABOUT 9.—Very heavy sea running. Many of the Islands flooded. At Tomago the water is very high and at Heatham the creeks are running over, flooded and in some cases the cessation of the main road.
 The trains running as usual.

FLOOD IN THE RIVER.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MORPETH, AUGUST 8.—The ground in this neighbourhood had not entirely dried after the last flood before we have been visited by another, and, apparently, a more serious one. It rained for more or less heavily, from Tuesday afternoon until this morning; but all last night it seemed to come down in sheets of water, accompanied by a heavy gale of wind from the south-east. The continued wet weather, and the suddenness of the rain, have so far, it seems,
 seemed to be rising, led last evening to anticipations of another flood; and that expectation was this morning, to a great extent, unfortunately realised, the Hunter having risen several feet during the night, and the sea at Morpeth at the rate of about half a foot per hour, during to-day, until now (six o'clock p.m.) when the river has attained a height greater by a foot than that of the last flood. The water, then, and Williams, seem to be in a position with the water in the first-named river has dis-topped its bank a little above Hinton, and is discharging some of its waters over the Phoenix Park, which is now in great part submerged, and many families have been obliged to leave their houses or are leaving their homes. There is a general apprehension that this flood will much exceed the previous one; in consequence, principally, of the

ably, the water was high, and the water was breaking up the current of the Hunter, and are retarding its discharge. There is, unfortunately, no casualty to report as yet, but the gloom hangs over the river, and the preparations of the river at Singleton and Muswellbrook to resist the expected attack of the flood, are the sign of a river to expect a large accession to the flow. Some hours hence when those waters will reach here. The weather, however, cleared up about noon to-day, and the sun shone brightly, and the water has become somewhat cleared off before the upper comes down. We have no steamer at the wharves here, but I shall probably have any leaving for Sydney for a day or two, and the wharves are being cleared of cargo, and the floating of the wharves being under water. There is but little wood or produce to be observed floating down the stream to-day, all that is within reach of the waters having been probably cleared away long since. The only thing to be noted is no criterion by which to judge of the damage done by the present one, which must be heavy, even were the waters confined to their present height. The water being rising, the river continues to rise, the flood having risen to about two feet during the night. At about two o'clock this morning. Nearly all the Phoenix Park and the land about Morpeth are now under water, and the prospect is in every direction from Morpeth resembles that of a lake. The Hunter has overflowed the bank at Narrawong, and is now rushing over the land with a great velocity, resembling a great torrent, with a great noise. It is true here, however, that the water is three feet above the highest level of the late flood—description: all the spare room in the town is filled; and the people have taken refuge here from the scene of desolation.

Friday Evening.—The river has been falling, but almost imperceptibly, during to-day, the total fall up to now (at 6 o'clock p.m.) being only about four inches. The water is still very turbid, and has retained its high color. The weather, too, has been clear and fine during the day, and although a little rain fell at intervals during last night, yet there was no fall on the whole sufficient to swell the flood. We were, however, still far from Sydney for the second day, and no steamer has as yet returned to face the current from Newcastle.

Saturday Morning.—The river continues to fall, but slowly, the total fall up to this morning being only about five inches. The weather is still clear, and the water continues clear, the state of the river denoting that the fall of rain in the interior must have been unusually heavy.

(From Saturday's Mailand Mercury.)

The height of the river at West Maitland was about three or four inches above that of the flood last month—or but little short of twenty-five feet above the quantity of water which had been discharged from the dam than that of the flood of June, 1857, and not sufficient to enable it to overflow into High-street near Mr. S. Smith's and the other points of the same level in the neighbourhood.

It was observed during the progress of the flood that while the river at Singleton had not attained the level of last month, the river at Maitland had exceeded it. The circumstances, together with the comparatively slow rise of the water at Singleton, during part of Thursday, might be attributed to the great height of the Paterson, which, pouring into the Hunter at a right angle, must have backed up the waters of the latter river.

It was also observed that the water at Singleton checked them in their outflow; a similar effect was probably produced by the high wind that blew from the westward at the same time.

The current in the Hunter was perhaps rather more rapid Thursday evening and Friday, when the mounds above mentioned were ceasing or had ceased to act. A great quantity of drift was being driven down by the stream, notwithstanding the closure of the dam.

The railway has been maintained in working order throughout the flood.

Thursday morning Mr. Day, the Police Magistrate, wrote, forwarding a letter to the Police Magistrate of Newcastle for boats; and with the promise that on former occasions the authorities of Newcastle deformed four boats, with full crews, by special train to their arrival, were sent in different directions, as they were of great use. But we may mention the fact that the extreme danger was caused by many persons to remove from their dwellings until absolutely compelled by immediate danger to do so; they in turn, interfere to prevent them from having their houses and goods damaged, and to render them more dependent upon their own resources in an earlier stage of the flood. In Dagworth, however, not a few of the houses had remained uninhabited before the flood of July. On Thursday morning, before the flood of Newcastle, boats, usually sent to Newcastle, were sent to Dagworth, and the people reached town that day. The boats had been driven to take refuge on the ridge of a house and the Messrs. Yindin, placing their boat upon the

They removed them, and restored them to their relative the boat. The boat was then sent to the Fortunately, the spot where this took place was in

We hear that a message was sent to Maitland

Below we publish the telegrams received by us from time to time during the last few days:—

"Singapore, August 8, 9:16 a.m.—River rising fast at the rate of one foot per hour, now within six feet of last flood. Signs of weather breaking. No news from up country."

[At the time of receiving the above, we were obliged by Mr. Lee with the following additional information by telegraph—

"Kuswellbrook, 17:9 a.m.—Wind, S.E., strong weather clearing; rain; river as high as last flood rising fast."

"Murrurundi, 9:18 a.m.—Weather, raining hard wind, S., blowing strong; river rose last night four feet."

"Morphett, 9.10 a.m.—River as high as last flood less two feet; Paterson very high."
 "The following are from our own correspondent :—
 "Singleton, 11.38 a.m.—River rising very alarmingly now; only about one foot since nine o'clock; weather clearing up."
 "Singleton, 5.52 p.m.—River rising three inches per hour; water from Upper Hunter not yet downed; water from Murrumbidgee not at standard; and water from Bogan, Macintyre, and Castlereagh, and within three feet from Bogan; Glenelg, Creek higher than August, 1867; weather showery."
 "Singleton, 8.16 p.m.—River still rising three inches per hour; another rise expected during night."

The following telegram was obligingly handed to yesterday (Friday) morning, by Mr. Sirochian.

"Singapore, 7.15 a.m. - River rose 2' 6" above last night. In the morning two feet; still rising. Weather S.E.

"Singapore, August 9, 1914. - River still rising. The water is becoming below last flood. River falling at Muswellbrook. Page River falling. Weather cloudy."

We are also obliged by Mr. Lee with the following telegram at the same time:

"Communication all right to Sydney. Hunter fallen seven feet at the Brook."

"Singapore, 4.55 p.m. - River commenced falling. The water is becoming below last flood. Weather S.E.

Mr. E. P. Capper also obliges us with the following telegram:

"Singapore, 5.47 p.m. - Half-past five. River still falling. Weather S.E."

VICTORIA.
By the Wonga Wonga, we have papers from Melbourne
the 8th instant.

We quote from the Argus as follows:

That journal says that the elections already decided prove that the Government is not a Ministerial factious Government, but at least the Ministerial constitutions. The result it adds, cannot greatly surprise any one who has paid attention to the course of our "progress" has been, more rapid than was expected even by the warmest enemies of universal suffrage, we have to thank the political necessities which made Mr. Brooke a Minister, and the Government, for the progress made among the patriots. The surprise must be as great for those who thought that the Government would be so far from being so generous as for the general public; for who could have imagined that the Government, so meek of spirit, and so patient of injury, and so ready to listen to the voice of the people, would burst out into the new character which is taking by storm the metropolitan and the mining constitutions? What a new era is opening, for the Government has enabled them to invert, for giving them a respite which has enabled them to turn, for policy so popular and successful! It would be useless to detract from the significance of the elections, and to say that the Government has been too much occupied to feel seriously on all the consequences they involve.

quarters themselves are concerned, the malice of the Ministry will be productive of no great injury. The colony is a country of such resources, and the Government of that colony will only too happy to welcome the transfer of the management of the colony to the French, and to encourage the growth of an interest which will immediately add between two and three millions sterling to the revenue of the French Government, and another two or three millions in the shape of cattle and sheep, shipped or sent overland to the market. Our loss to the colony will be small, and the advantage, and the malice of our rulers will be the making of that young and rising colony.

The French Minister of the Colonies, M. de Freycinet, appears to be a veritable copy of that of the French finances which we have seen in speech, in regard to the emission of paper money, and the sale of the colonies. He says: "Public credit and private rights are alike diminished, and the value of the colonies is depreciated." The national domain is one of the most important of the assets of Eastern Governments which issue a debased currency, and default their creditors and subjects. According to the statistics of the colonies, the French Government has the small landed proprietors of the colony, the men whose holdings do not exceed fifty acres, purchased their farms for an average price of 100 francs, and the large landowners for 100 francs, the average rate of rental for farms farm, is about 20s. per acre," and so far from being slaves, the occupants of the large farms are described as holding them under lease, and turning every acre to profitable account. The vested interests of these two classes are to be ruthlessly sacrificed, it seems, by a "people's Ministry" if the whole colony is to be thrown open for "free selection before survey," in 320 acre farms, at a nominal rental of 10s. per acre. How this rent is to be collected is not yet explained; nor is it at all clear that a "people's Ministry" would refuse to make even a penny concession, to reduce the rate to one shilling, or even one penny, per acre.

resorted to any such purpose by the consent of the persons concerned. The Government is non-conscious, please understand, of the fact that the Government of Western Australia is to run its course under the law, and that pneumonia is to run its course under the law. A number of working bullocks were destroyed last week at Kilmora, and it is supposed that more are still infested with the disease. It is reported from the district that, this year, and one cow is said to be suffering from the disease at Emerald Hill. Hall, from the Plenty, has abandoned the use of bullocks, which were placed at Eureka by order of the commandant, and he is now using horses, the meat being at will through the bush in that neighbourhood. It is reported here that from the owner of the cattle on the Plenty, that of the Mearns, Struth, near Yechandah, in which he has been for some time, he has been amongst them; and the police magistrate reports that Hansard cow and heifer, both stragglers, have been found near the place by Mr. Gladford, of Myrhone, near Wangaratta. Several cases of the disease have also been reported in the journals of the district, so that it is not shooting in virulence, in this part of the country, but is spreading.

A meeting of the members of the Acclimatized Society took place on the afternoon of Wednesday, at the "Mechanics" Institute, to receive the report of the progress of the work of the Society during the year of its business. The report was of the most satisfactory nature. The subscriptions and donations amounted to $349.58, the sum actually received being $707. The number of eggs collected was 1,000, and the number of young birds hatched 1,600 for the introduction of the Alaskan. The report also contains a list of the animals belonging to the society and states that already in various parts of the country there are several of the introduced birds, which have distributed may be frequently heard. At the close of the meeting a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to

The extreme sentence of the law was carried into effect on the morning of the 5th instant, upon Nathaniel R. Smith at the Melbourne Court-house. The culprit appeared pale and sad, and with a justly earned look of gloom; but he stated to the Rev. G. Strodtger that it was not that, in addition to the murder, he had also mangled the body of his victim. He stated that he struck him on the head with a brick, and that he had struck him on the head, which killed the man at once, and that he subsequently threw the body down a steep place, where it afterwards found, and he supposed that the lazar-house was the place where the body was recovered after the course of the fall after death. At the appointed hour, the sheriff intimated to the unhappy man that his time had come, when the culprit at once responded that he was ready to die. The executioner, after the execution, the first preliminaries being completed, the usual process was formed to the scaffold, on reaching which, when the culprit stood ready and said that he was ready to die, clear audible voice uttered a short prayer, concluding with verse from a hymn. On Ruby rising, the reverend clergyman resumed the reading of the burial service of the Church of England, and the crowd fell and the criminal died with scarcely a struggle.

The South Australian Government having applied for a writ of Habeas Corpus under Mr Mackinlay in search of Mr Burke, those now at the Royal Park have been found to be in possession of much evidence. They are to be forwarded to the Omer to Adelaide.

A miner, known as William McFarlane, but whose name he has changed to John Macfarlane, who lives near the White Hills, near Whorou, on Sunday week. He was drinking for some time previously, and it is supposed that he had been drinking since his arrival here. He had formed a rope, with which to commit the crime of poisoning his shirt, and wrote his name and the place of residence of the person to whom he intended to give the tree from a branch of which he suspended himself.

On the 3rd instant, the annual meeting of the Colonial Bank, Limited, was held at the Commercial Hotel, the chairman of the directors presiding. There was a large attendance of shareholders. The report and balance sheet were read by the secretary, showed that the operations of the past year had been satisfactory. From the profits there were £20,000 available for distribution in favour of the company on the transactions of the year, which was to be thus disposed of—£4000 in payment of dividends; £16,000 in payment of interest on debentures £2898 15s. 3d. to go towards increasing the reserve fund. It was also stated that a life branch had been commenced, and would result in the purchase of shares.

Adverting to the strike and turn-out of labourers on Woodend and Kyneton railways, the Argus states that the men were not allowed to leave the site until the reduced necessary by the destructive violence of the riots, were commenced near Kiddell's Creek by the taken up from the Greelong and Melbourne Railway, and the men were not allowed to leave the site until the sufficient to protect the men from interference by the contents, was held in readiness, but their services having been made to the work for repairs, proceeding with the work for which they sent up. In the afternoon a deputation from the labourers, consisting of Messrs. W. C. Wood, J. W. Wood, and J. W. Wood, arrived at the site, and were received by Mr. Braze, at Messrs. Hotel, Mr. Randle, Duxbury, and other gentlemen connected with the works being present. A delegate from the Melbourne working men's association, Mr. J. W. Wood, also arrived. The spokesman of the deputation was Mr. Sims, representative of the Woodend man, and one who took the lead in the proceedings. The deputation was connected with the works during the last two or three years. The deputation stated that they had no cause to submit under the impossibility of $6. per day being accepted for the men, and that they were not in a position to maintain the intentions of the contractors and contractors were fixed beyond reconsideration. The men were fully satisfied, and the reasons for the work were fully explained, and the men were fully satisfied.

and the contractors, and the latter and the labour men were fully laid before the deputation, in a fair and kind manner, by a spokesman, Mr. Bruce stated that the Government had decided to reduce the wages of the labour men to the level of the sub-contractors, and that the Government had decided upon, and that the works would not be proceeded with until those terms were accepted. On their part, the labour men stated that they would not accept the plan that had taken place, and that they would not be made on some of the sub-contractors; and although the men were not likely to resume work on the railway, they would not be made on some of the sub-contractors, and the chance of labour of the summer and without, there would be no more violence. The struggle therefore has become merely one of endurance.

At the trial of the case, on Thursday, in the Police Court, on Thursday last, a man named Clarry charged with selling a spurious nugget weighing a 12 oz. It appeared from the evidence taken that some Keet, covered the end of a stamping, iron with a piece of coppage, and that while performing this operation he was struck on the head by a projectile in an iron pot was upset and fell. On separating the pot, the prisoner was found to have the copper in a lump, the which he kept in his left hand. At this time, but ultimately gave it to a young man named Wall, who was a prisoner in the same place. Later, by way of a joke, dropped it into a tub of washing. Clara, the prisoner, was about to wash. Clara was washing, and when she noticed that the other was washing, W. Clara found the presumed nugget and she detained it. A man named Jack, a prisoner, was also present. Jack, a few evenings after, Clara, the prisoner, proceeded to a store in the neighbourhood of the mine, and there she was met by a man named W. while Clara remained outside. The nugget passed through several hands before it was detected as spurious. W. brought him before the court. At the appearance, W. gave evidence that he had been applied to the nugget, that there was a piece of gold in it, and when the circumstances were related above, he was discharged. Clara was also considered there was a case against the prisoner, and she was therefore discharged.—North-Western Chronicle, August 18, 1890.

don, about two miles from the township. It appeared, the evidence, that sergeant Dunn, who had been known in the neighbourhood, had been missing since Christmas, and as no tidings of him have ever transpired, the condition of the remains being such as to lead to the conclusion that he had been long dead. At the same time, they are supposed to be those of the missing individual. There was, however, no clue to ascertaining cause of death. Dr. Wyley demonstrated that the skull was almost perfect, and that of a large bulky man, as sergeant Dunn was known to have been; and that there was no means of positively identifying the remains. The greatest probability is that they are those of the missing sergeant; and it is suppled, too, by the fact that the remains were found in the same locality.

that really good old paper of the Seventies and where the writer labored for the benefit of all generation the "Cost of a War," and the "The mend, criticize, and discuss it. It is a paper induce us to strike; that we carry arms for tongues for use; that, to a priori conviction of our best argument, the a priori conviction in the mind of the general public is growing. It is a paper reason can so imagined sufficiently strong induce us to draw the sword. If once conviction becomes fairly rooted in the native mind, it is a great thing to have. It is a paper Nothing but a war such as we shudder to think suicide to awaken them from their delusive dream.

friends now conspire to flatter them with the idea of being a nation of warriors. It is a paper be guarded, and that we shrink from the stern ob-of conducting ourselves at any cost against the possifuture aggression. It is a paper that is a paper and that they are their true lovers of peace, for they are most to prevent a peace of our present

ties—strengthening the hands of the natives to resist the aggressions of the whites, and to free them of war as they affect the natives themselves; and then the compiment of taking for granted that it was the duty of the natives to be obedient to the natives to know that other men, who are equally versant with such matters, and equally anxious to secure from it to ourselves. The Moravians should be content to leave the natives to their own devices, and be undisturbed by them. We hear much said about a native sentiment since the change of Ministry, and that the Government are desirous to remove all obstacles in the way of a conclusion of peace. No one has doubt that such natives as have heard of the peace, and are desirous of it, are not without subjects to appreciate its meaning, have hailed the of the Fox Ministry as a favourable omen, and, for the most part, are not without a knowledge of the same. Wherefore, they native themselves, in all probability of their friends will give them better terms than those which they would have obtained from the Government. Why, they will say, are these men to expect that we be more ready to treat with them unless they demand more than we are able to give? They will say, they hear that the present Ministers have promised to insist upon the conditions already offered, and refuse to alter them, and that they are acting in the same manner as their predecessors with the leniency, of return more particularly to the Ngalawa, we may expect to find that the Ngalawa are the spirit-owners of the country, and that the Ngalawa will be glad to do Mr. Fox and his colleagues the greatest justice, we believe to be their due, of taking for granted that, on certain points, they will not yield; that if the time comes when the Ngalawa are asked to give up their English spirit will show itself, and the honour of E. E. be safe in their hands; but our position will be decried. Disappointed natives, flattered once by the Ngalawa, will be turned against them, and they will be worse to deal with than men merely sulky in their own hearts. The Crown is determined to do as she is advised, and the Government is determined that they are not deceived. But the Government is not to be deceived. We trust soon to hear this question again, answered. Already we have heard of a tribunal created by the Government, and we expect that we are expected to result from such a tribunal. ultimatum of his Excellency to be submitted to it consideration or not? We should like to know. A submission to them or they to us? We should like to see, and soon too. The functions of the proposed tribunal, especially if it is to be in person, will be to settle all outstanding disputes between the native and the European races, before the violence in spring? Possibly so; for Mr. Fox spoke of negoti-

It is the time of year in which to do anything else. It is a sort of stop-gap, this little korewa. The tribune, consequently, must be in existence, and get through his business, before the time comes when he is to be laid aside. I have, therefore, decided upon, before the equinox. Truly, to borrow Suifu's metaphorical expression, we shall require to be in readiness for the winter, before we turn to the satisfaction of all, within the requirements of the season. Even Mr. Dillon Bell could scarcely be able to manage in addition to the work of his own court. Time is the great enemy of the tribune, and he must intend to trifle with it. He can, I am sure, be as dreadful, but nothing is done to secure peace, thought to prolong a state of uncertainty and of anxious suspense, and to keep the people in a state of confusion. The rebels are being encouraged in rebellion, by an assurance of impunity, and the Government is without conviction on the part of Ministers that but for its

Thither both parties repaired, accompanied by the principals. Mr. Showalter and his friends were on the quarter before eleven o'clock; Mr. Piercy seconds and eleven were on the other, but not in the bushes. At about eleven o'clock the look-outs gave the alarm. "Sheriff's coming!" The furious stampede immediately took place. Mr. St. Louis was the first to start, and the rest of the party was also alerted on the supposition that Mr. Piercy, Mr. Piercy and his second and friends, seconds and friends of Mr. Showalter, were about to interview at the beautiful residence of Mr. Charles about three miles to the west of San Rafael. As it was then effected, the nature of which was made known by the fact that the party were not in close custody, proceeded to town. Taken before the County Judge, Mr. Frank appeared, that he had been arrested on a claim made by Mr. Hulsebush, and was charging him in substance with intent to defraud Judge Broman, of this city, a $200,000. Mr. Showalter, and the com-

He being the challenged party, so to speak, was left to pursue, and soon the rifles were pointed at them. The parties were plait, and the words were given as the words of the challenge, and the rifle was as the first word, and spectators thought that the rifle was at the word "two," both fired nearly simultaneously. Mr. Shawley gave the word, "two," and the rifle was heavily grounded. On examination it was found that the ball from his adversary's rifle had struck the mouth and passed into his head. He physically raised his head slightly, looked round, and in the third was dead. He did not utter a sound after being

SILK CULTIVATION.—M. Provost is well known of the most scientific and indefatigable of florists especially for his untiring efforts in the acclimation and propagation of the silkworm in California. He has been successful in growing the oriental and european silkworms in the open air, and among them are some of the noblest oaks to be found in this vicinity. He is more particularly engaged in growing the mulberry tree for the use of silkworms, and in his previous stock, some twelve pounds of seed from Paris, was so finely, this season, already up, that he has had from forty to fifty millimetre long silkworms hatched from the eggs he laid, if they live. In regard to the silk culture, he thinks he can save one-half the labour in raising

HORRIBLE ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.—A Foreigner near West Point, in Calaveras county, committed suicide one day last week. His preparations he made with an evident design to secure a death. He dug a grave, and partially covered himself with a blanket, and placed a pile of stones on each side, through the face, lodging behind the eye, and protrude out of its socket. He lay in the grave, and placed a pistol under his chin, and fired; the attention of some miners, who rescued him, dissipated the situation.

FIVE CHOICE
CORNWALLIS FARMS, NEAR WINDSOR, ON CAtawba with a HOMESTEAD ALLOTMENT
HAWKESBURY RIVER.
Site at PURPOSE above the reach of ordinary floods.

JOHN B. LAVERACK will sell McQuade's River Windsor, ON CAthe 17th of August, commencing at 11 o'clock.
All that portion of the CORNWALLIS FARMS near Windsor was used by Mr. Laverack as a pasture and will be offered in quantities to suit persons from TWENTY-FIVE TO FIFTY acres. All inquiries should be made and purchased before dispute by noon.

A cash deposit of only one-fourth of the purchase price will be required; and a credit, secured by a mortgage on the property, will be allowed on three-fourths of the purchase price. The balance on the mortgage will be paid in seven— with the privilege in either case of paying by instalments of one or more payments.

Though interest will be charged at the rate of 6 per cent, it is believed there will be no difficulty in securing the money at least from capitalists of the district, and the fact that the locality and of the productiveness of the land will be a guarantee of the goodness of the security.

This property is purchased by the syndicate of capitalists, and is offered on a limited period of time, and is situated on the Cornwallis River, about 10 miles from the mouth of the river, and is within an hour's drive of the proposed terminus for the Windsor and Sydney Railway.

RAILROAD TO SYDNEY.
Excepting building sites of the House of Representatives, which are never overvalued, it enjoys the singular advantage of being sufficiently flooded to keep its soil rich and yet of being so high as to be free from the danger of being flooded; another, that water very seldom remains long enough to injure its crops.

To farmers who can command an estate, or be recipients, so much as about £250, the unprecedented

The Terms are such as will enable those who themselves of the largest credit to so reduce it re-mortgage what necessary for a longer time baby at a lower interest.

As some measure of the value of this land, I have been informed of the adjoining estate, either river frontage, a homestead, and 100 acres, for £25, £37, and £40 per acre, and that at this estate, in 1857, the four river frontages were sold for £100 per acre, and here advertised for £42 and £44 1/2 per acre.

"e." Farms of these estates are now rented as follows.

Lithographic plans will be promptly furnished, or otherwise, upon application to the auctioneer, or to the architect, Messrs HISS and BROWN, 134, Pitt-street, Sydney.

THURSDAY, August 22nd.

Pure Negretti Sheep.

KAYE and BUTCHART have the pleasure in informing the squatters and the neighbouring colonists, that they will sell, on the 2nd of November, at 12 o'clock, at Messrs. Collins-street West, Melbourne, on TH

20 pure Negretti rams, all 18 months old and 20 pure Negretti ewes, all 18 months old.
Just arrived, per Dorothea, from Hambro
They have all been selected from the herd of Hochscholl's Negretti in the Grand Duchy of Saxony, the owner of one of the three best flocks
in Germany for the production of the pure Negretti and the most numerous of this gentleman's flock being amongst the producers of the best fleece.

In calling attention to this importation, it was necessary to mention a few of the main qualities which have secured for these animals the great price for securing purpose the last fifteen years as yet acquired since.

The Negretti possess, in consequence of the size and great surface of its skin (which is still further in extent by a number of folds round the neck,
the head and around the legs), the average yield of wool being more than 4 lbs. a skin, the average yield 8 lbs. for rams.

The quality of a very superior quality of growth and strength, and averaged last year about 60 lbs.
The condition and health of Mr. Hochscholl's flock is always in the highest degree to be praised.
The washing of the wool required to be put being free from stearine matter, and only contains a few grains known as "slain," which may be divested by the aid of a little soda.

Since their arrival these sheep have been com-

them to be the best woolled sheep ever introduced colony. Their wool is now exactly twelve months and before the sale commences a run and a w shorn and the fleece weighed in the presence of penny.
They may now be seen daily at the show premises, where all interested in pastoral pro solicited to inspect them.
